

Free Event for
High School & College Students!

Thinking about a career in science or math?
Join us for a day of exploration in the wide range of opportunities that might be in your future.

Careers of Science & Math Opportunity Summit: COSMOS

Saturday, 4 February 2017

at the Murie Building on the UAF Campus (near the Museum) from 8:30 a.m. until 1 p.m.

(free event but registration is required)

University of Alaska Fairbanks

College of Natural Science and Mathematics, School of Natural Resources and Extension

College of Fisheries and Ocean Sciences, and School of Education

- Atmospheric Sciences
- Biochemistry
- Biological Sciences
- Chemistry
- Earth Science
- Environmental Chemistry
- Fisheries
- Geology
- Geosciences
- Geography
- Healthcare and Research
- Marine Science and Limnology
- Mathematics and Statistics
- Natural Resources Management
- Ocean Sciences
- Physics
- Science Education
- Space Physics
- Veterinary Medicine
- Wildlife Biology and Conservation

Meet with scientists and current science students, small group discussions, hands-on activities, information on careers, education and funding options, tradeshow with industry and governmental agencies, student organizations and so much more!

UAF Admissions and Financial Aid staff will also be available to answer questions during this event - get a jump start on your application or follow-up with FAFSA.

Limited seating so PREREGISTRATION is REQUIRED:

<https://sites.google.com/alaska.edu/cosmos>

For more information, contact carolyn.chapin@alaska.edu 474-5548

The University of Alaska Fairbanks is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and educational institution.